To whom it may concern

Kevin Reckinger, owner of Bricewood Carpentry, has undertaken major remodeling projects in our home over the last 3 years in several stages. These have included:

Remodel master bath and second bath, replace hot water service

Rebuild all floors and replace with hardwood

Rebuild French windows and fireplace

Rebuild deck, recycling/reusing original materials

Rebuild floors and replace flooring in bedrooms with hardwood

Replace trim throughout house to match new flooring

Repaint interior

Insulate and heat garage

Major upgrades to furnace, air conditioning, ducting

Multiple "small" repairs and upgrades to electrical, mechanical and plumbing systems.

We have always been absolutely satisfied with him and his work for the following reasons:

His own work is always of the highest quality

He expects and obtains the same standard from all his subcontractors

He pays meticulous attention to detail

His projects have always been under time and under budget

He is always accessible by cell phone, email or text, and returns calls or texts immediately.

He is an innovative builder, and makes suggestions [always tactfully!] for better ways of approaching a problem.

If problems arise [and that is the name of the remodeling game], he consults and responds immediately.

The site is always immaculate. Work areas are isolated from the rest of the house and separately ventilated. The site is always all picked up at the end of every day, cleaned, and all debris removed.

We have worked with many builders over the years, and while many of them have had some of these attributes, not one of them has had the complete package. In our experience, no one has been as exceptional to work with as Mr. Reckinger. We will continue to use him for future projects, and have no hesitation in recommending him to anyone who needs remodeling of the highest quality and with personalized attention.

We are privileged to be able to recommend him as Remodeler of the Year.
